HIT THE HIGH SPOTS.

By Hal E. Roach.

The Spat Family decide to do some mountain climbing and for practice they take a short trip to a neighboring mountainous section to experiment. Equipped in full with rope and alpenstock, they start the climb which abounds in a number of humorous though perilous (at times) adventures. They reach the summit of the mountain but only after the party has nearly lost its balance and way on several occasions. Through a badly chosen path, their return is much quicker than their ascent and they reach the bottom finally, a wiser and much sadder bunch.
